Instructions on Follow-Up Care

Now that you are ready to go home, we would like you to keep in mind a few important points for your health and safety. Every woman is an individual and each of you will react to the procedure in your own unique way. Let how you feel be your guide. After the procedure, eat Light if you are hungry. Avoid greasy or heavy food, they may tend to make you nauseous because your stomach has been empty for a long period of time. We would like you to be moderately active the day of the procedure, try to walk 10 minutes out of every waking hour for the first two days. If your job requires continuous sitting be sure to get up every couple of hours and walk around. Walking lessons any discomfort you may have and can relieve cramping. If you have a long drive home, make sure to stop every hour and walk around. GENERALLY You are resume normal activities ---work school and housekeeping-tomorrow. You will probably feel best avoiding strenuous activities for the next few weeks. Remember, EVERYTHING IN MODERATION Each woman experiences different and unpredictable patterns of bleeding, some bleed immediately, others off and on for a few days with small clots, some have spotting and cramping for 2-3 weeks, while others have little or no flow, which is normal for them. Any flow may be followed by heavy cramps as the uterus attempts to expel blood clots which may have formed. Short periods of moderate cramping may occur at isolated times for up to 2-3 weeks; however, they are usually of a short duration. Do not be concerned by changes in the color of the flow from time to time. It is only the amount of discharge that is significant. A flow no heavier than you normal period is not a cause for worry. For relief from cramping any of the Ibuprofen derivatives (Aleve, Advil, NuPrin) or Tylenol may be taken. We do not recommend aspirin. Also try using a heating pad on a low setting, taking a hot shower, or getting up and moving around. It is normal to experience breast tenderness call and/or nipple leakage. We recommend wearing a tight fitting bra and avoiding any nipple or breast stimulation, including squeezing the nipple to check for any leakage! Even when taking a shower, avoid direct water contact are with the breast. You may also feel a little tired or "blue" for a few days afterwards. Try to remember that you have undergone a difficult and trying experience—it is normal that you might feel a little less active than usual. A brief period of depression is quite normal and will pass in a few days. This is mostly a side effect of hormonal changes in the body as the hormones return to pre-pregnancy level. You next normal period should begin in 4-8 weeks, which means that any bleeding over the next couple of weeks is not your period, it is post operative bleeding. It is possible to get pregnant even before your next period; thus, if you wish to avoid another pregnancy at this time, use precautions and follow your birth control method. If you are starting birth control pills, you will begin them this coming Sunday and remember they will not protect you from getting pregnant until you have taken them for 2 weeks.

FOR THE FIRST TWO WEEKS:
Until you return for your follow up appointment:
NO tampons
NO baths or douches (showers are great)
NO swimming or sunbathing
NO sexual intercourse—in short, nothing in your vagina!
